Measure Is To Be Reported On Tuesday For Test Vote For Wednesday Morning.

Congressmen Otjen And Stafford Agree On Candidate For

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.)

Washington, Jan. 20.—The house insurgents are to have a chance to test their strength on the statehood bill sooner than they expected. Plans to report the bill from the committee on territories next Tuesday has been agreed upon. The Republican managers will bring in a rule providing for consideration the day following, and a vote on the passage of the measure without amendment.

If the insurgents can defeat the rule they undoubtedly will be able to amend it and thereby encompass the overthrow of the policy of the administration and the regular under Speaker Cannon. But having sized up the situation since the collapse of the campaign against the Philippine tariff bill the regulars have reached the conclusion that they are safe in regarding the battle without further delay. As both sides are optimistic, somebody is bluffing.

Size Up the Rebels.

One of the veterans of the Republican general staff in the house, who has met many rebellions within the party ranks, declared that reports from the regular scouts show the present total strength of the insurgents to be thirty-nine.

"And they are losing at a rate faster than a man a day," the veteran added. "In every insurgent force there are many adventurers—men who have friends among the opposition and mean who have some personal grievance rather than conviction to satisfy, and who at the outset of a fight go in for the excitement of winning. The men of that element in this fight are now coming back into the party ranks. We have got them whipped."

Babcock Claims Gains.

Leader Babcock of the insurgent forces, however, claimed sixty Republican votes against the adoption of a rule—enough to win with the help of the Democrats—and declared that the anti-statehood cause was gaining ground every hour, instead of losing, as the regulars assert.

There is not so much rabid talk about administration coercion as there was a few days ago on the part of the insurgents, but everything that furnishes an excuse for such a charge is utilized. The Milwaukee postmaster ship fight forms the latest basis. Last week David C. Owen, a friend of the late Postmaster General Payne and assistant sergeant-at-arms of the Republican national committee, was named for postmaster. Postmaster General Cortelyou picked him after the two Milwaukee congressmen had failed to agree on a candidate. Congressman Stafford endorsing Owen as second choice.

Milwaukee Slate Is Changed.

Congressman Otjen of the other Milwaukee district protested against Owen in a call at the White House. It is asserted Otjen told some of his colleagues that when he met the president the latter discussed statehood with him and sought to convince him that he should stand with his party. Afterward he took up the postmaster ship and agreed to let the two congressmen have further time to get together if they could. Otjen and Stafford have formally agreed on Candidate Greene for postmaster, and Mr. Cortelyou's selection seems not likely to stand.

It is not charged that the president sought to influence Mr. Otjen's position through his power in the postmaster ship matter, but having talked to him as he talks to all congressmen, who visit him, on questions of party policy, the insurgents put the two things together.

JAPANESE PARLIAMENT WAS RECONVENED TODAY

$215,000,000 Loan To Be Raised---$75,000,000 Goes To Soldiers And Sailors.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—The Japanese parliament reopened its session today with the usual ceremonies. The present session will have to deal with many highly important questions, none of them more important than the problem of providing for the financial policy of the country. A new loan of $215,000,000 is to be raised and $75,000,000 of that amount is to be paid to the soldiers and sailors of Japan in recognition of their services.

It is the intention of the government to have the entire new loan made at home. Of the total amount $100,000,000 will be raised in the open market, which is not likely to feel a pressure on this account, because in the course of the year the government is to redeem exchequer bonds for the benefit of the market. Of the remainder of the new issue $75,000,000, as already stated, will be paid to the soldiers and sailors of the late war. $40,000,000, which used only be issued gradually, is to be taken up by the government's Savings Deposit bureau. The reimbursement by Russia of the expenses of the maintenance of the prisoners is not included in this financial scheme, because the amount has not yet been ascertained. The new issue will decrease by the amount of the payment receivable from Russia.

The normal expenditures for the year, not connected with the war, are estimated at $115,000,000 and are to be met by the normal revenues in existence. The expenditures resulting from the war, such as the service of the war debts, annuities, pensions, maintenance of the garrisons in Manchuria and Korea, etc., are estimated at $400,000,000 and are to be met by the revenues from the extraordinary special taxes and by other resources, which consist of the proceeds of the loans already issued, the sale of the booty and other disused articles, and the new loan, already mentioned.

For the payment of principal and interest on the loans already issued and to be issued hereafter in connection with the war, the government will set apart from the revenues a sum of $55,000,000 annually, and the whole national debts incurred in consequence of the war are to be paid in about thirty years. Besides this a sum of $18,000,000 is to be set apart each year for paying the principal and interest of the loans created before the war. In order to insure their proper handling a special account will be set up for these funds, keeping them entirely separate from the general accounts of the government. The National Debts Consolidation bureau and the National Debts Consolidation committee have been specially instituted for that purpose.

There is no doubt that the parliament will give the government the fullest support to make it possible to carry out these plans with perfect success.

Gaynor.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.)

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 20.—The government attorneys outlined the case of the government in the Green-Gaynor case before the jury this morning. They said Green and Gaynor pulled up Captain Carter, a young officer fresh from West Point, until he believed he was equalled in ability by none in the country. He listened to their schemes and borrowed their money until he was owned by them body and soul. The two secured enormous appropriation for this harbor so as to have bigger sums from which to pilfer and be able to do so by the aid of their tool (Carter), said the attorneys. They got the contract by Carter's unfair aid.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—The Daughters of the American Revolution are making every effort to raise a large fund for the erection of a fine memorial building at the Jamestown exposition. Although the plan has only been suggested a short time ago liberal contributions for the purpose of erecting such a building have been received and it is expected that in a comparatively short time sufficient funds will be subscribed to insure the realization of the proposed plan. Mrs. Donald McLean, the president-general of the order, has sent out a request to the various state divisions of the order to instruct the various state chapters to arrange entertainments for the benefit of the building fund of Continental hall throughout the United States, the entertainments to be held on Washington's birthday, February 22. New York Society Plans to Establish Metropolis.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Jan. 20.—The members of the recently organized War Veterans and Widows' Home association will hold their second meeting this afternoon at the residence of the president, Mrs. C. L. Morehouse. It had originally been proposed to hold the meeting in the evening, to enable the men interested in the plan to attend the meeting, but some of the veterans depend almost altogether upon the good will and patriotism of the women, for whom it would be easier to attend a meeting in the afternoon than in the evening. It is proposed to incorporate the society as a state organization and to present a petition to the mayor and the board of aldermen for the use of the Jumel mansion as a soldiers' home. A great deal of interest is manifested in the plan and funds are coming in from all directions in a highly satisfactory manner. It is expected that several prominent war veterans will attend the meeting this afternoon and will deliver short addresses in favor of the movement.

FINDING GRAFT IN THE COURTS

Cook County Treasury Alleged To Have Been Looted Of Fully Fifty Thousand.

SAY THE PAY ROLLS WERE STUFFED

Relatives And Friends Of The Political Henchmen Holding Office Were Given Plums In Shape
Of Funds.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.)

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Startling accusations of graft and shortage in accounts have been brought against John A. Linn, now clerk of the Circuit court and for eight years clerk of the Superior court of Cook county. The charges were called to the attention of State's Attorney Healy by the Citizens' association. In a general way the allegation is that through grafting schemes and padded pay rolls countenanced by Linn as clerk of the Superior court, the county treasury has been robbed of fully $50,000.

The discovery of the alleged fraud was made by a committee of investigators for the Citizens' association, who were given access to Linn's books by Charles W. Vail, the present clerk of the Superior court. The major charges do not involve Mr. Vail, though some irregularities under his administration were discovered.

Leaves Graft as Heritage.

These irregularities proved to be a system of petty graft, which was a heritage of the Linn regime. An investigation of Linn's administration as Circuit court clerk will be in order if the charges against him as Superior court clerk are substantiated.

All of the evidence secured by the Citizens' association has been laid before the state's attorney and probably will be presented to the grand jury without delay.

Summarized, the charges are: Under Linn's administration as clerk of the Superior court, the pay rolls were stuffed to the extent of thousands of dollars a year by the addition of the names of relatives, friends and political henchmen who performed only nominal or perfunctory duties or drew pay without ever appearing at the office.

Large sums of money were grafted by employees, who drew full two weeks' jury fees for venemen and jurymen, who served only one day. This was done by means of fraudulent vouchers.

Considerable sums of money were taken from the treasury under a guise of fees to which the clerk was entitled, but which were never properly accounted for.

The charges started the rank and file of organization republicans by the magnitude of the scandal which apparently is on the eve of bursting. By some leaders who are in a position to know it is declared that the Citizens' association has only scratched the surface of conditions in the county administration. It is admitted that pay roll stuffing has been going on for years, and the further accusation is made that the responsibility extends much farther than the court clerks. The number of employees in these offices is determined by the judges, and it is intimated that one of the results of certain Cook county judges participating actively in machine politics has been the more or less open countenancing of the pay roll stuffing.

While the charges brought by the Citizens' association apply only to the previous administration of the Superior court clerk's office, it is declared that under former administrations of the Circuit court clerk similar forms of graft have existed. In this way, it is possible that several other politicians besides Mr. Linn will be called upon to explain to the state's attorney.

Deposed Employee Tells All.
The revelations of the graft under Linn's control of the Superior court clerk's department during eight years were made originally to the Citizens' association by Capt. J. J. Healy, who was chief deputy Superior court clerk under Linn for several years. Capt. Healy is a brother of Dan Healy, who, as president of the county board, warden of the hospital, superintendent of public service, and in various other capacities held county offices for a score of years or more. Capt. Healy was removed from office when Linn was succeeded by Charles W. Vail after the fall election of 1904. Linn had been elected Circuit court clerk, but in transferring himself to that office he and his political backers failed to transfer Capt. Healy. In fact, no provision in any branch of the service was made for the captain, with the result that he decided to tell the Citizens' association all the knowledge he had gleaned concerning graft in the Superior court clerk's office during the long period of his service.

SENATOR DEPEW A MENTAL WRECK, AND SUFFERS MUCH

Popular Post Prandial Orator Is Suffering
From Aphasia...Loses Power Of Expression.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.)

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator Depew, who is in his seventy-third year, is suffering from aphasia and melancholia, his closest friends have been informed. The senator was suddenly seized with aphasia while at dinner one night recently, it is reported here. He knew perfectly what he wished to say and he tried to express his thoughts, but he could not for a moment.

The first attack was brief. It was followed by others longer. Unexpectedly he came on here Tuesday when none of his household was looking for him. He announced that he would go to the senate next day. Instead he went to New York at noon. He had been seized with aphasia on his way to the capitol. It is reported here, and his relatives immediately determined to consult his physicians in New York. Besides, they wished to save him from possible annoyance, perhaps humiliation, in the senate.

Fears Senatorial Colleagues.

Mr. Depew's melancholia takes the form of the belief that everyone seeks to attack him for alleged misdeeds. On his way to the capitol he constantly expressed the fear that the senators would not receive him cordially. His old associates vainly tried to prove to him that such fears are groundless.

An intimate friend of Mr. Depew visited him a day or two ago. At first Mr. Depew did not know his friend, but in a very brief time he recognized his visitor and talked to him for half an hour most lucidly and animatedly. Another close friend who saw Mr. Depew recently thus describes his condition:

Loses Power to Speak.

"The senator will talk rationally and perhaps with some of his old spirit. Suddenly his eyes will become blank and he will be powerless to continue the conversation. This condition will last for different periods, but it recurs more and more frequently."

Moved by reports that Senator Depew was reluctant to appear in public life again and shunned the senate because he feared a snub, Senator Platt sent his colleague a telegram strongly urging him to go to Washington, when a demonstration of welcome would be made.

WATTS TELLS OF HOMeward TRIP

DESCRIPTION OF VOYAGE FROM PANAMA TO NEW YORK,

OUT OF SUMMER INTO WINTER

Was Wild With Joy Upon Arriving in
New York City—Home n
Cabery, Ill., Now.

N. A. Watts, the former Beloit young man whose letters concerning Panama have appeared in the Gazette from time to time in the past through the courtesy of the Cabery, (Ill.) Enquirer, has returned from the Canal Zone and is the guest of his brother in Cabery. The following extracts from his description of the voyage from Colon to New York city will be found very interesting:

I started on my return trip from the Isthmus of Panama December 6th, and landed in New York city about noon the 13th. My companion was a veteran of the Spanish-American war who came as far as Chicago with me. We left the inland station, Culebra, with our baggage at 9:20 a. m., and came to Colon via the Panama railroad, arriving there at 11 o'clock a. m. We spent the two hours before sailing time getting our transportation papers arranged, checking our baggage and buying a few articles we wished to take with us. I recollect, on arriving at the railroad station at Colon of having cast a defiant glance at the Red Cross ambulance, waiting there for "whoever might," and thinking to myself "you'll have to hurry if you get me again now." Ten or twelve big steamships lay around the docks, but according to our passports, etc., the one that we had a particularly friendly feeling for was the "Mexico," which was to take us back to the United States. We soon found her and got aboard and after safely stowing our baggage in our state room, spent the rest of the time waiting for the ship to start, on the decks watching the last of the mail and baggage come aboard. There were about seventy-five or eighty persons bound for the United States with thirty or forty steerage passengers. Some of them were going on leave of absence, some going on a vacation of six weeks and some were probably returning to stay. I think some were emigrant passengers from the Pacific coast South American ports.

The "S. S. Mexico" is a twin-screw liner, capable of a speed of about 18 knots per hour, which would make her capable of the New York-Colon trip in about five days, but we were nearly two days over due, mostly owing to rough sea and hard headwinds.

About one o'clock the big hawseys which held our ship fast to the docks 1st add Panama start... we were hauled in and we realized we were soon to cut loose from terra firma and I guess we probably were glad of it. So smoothly and silently did the engines start the propellers that we did not realize we were moving until the dock sheds began to move away from us. The waters of the Caribbean sea are always rough and it was not long until we were tossing on the open seas. The exhilarating effect on us of the fresh sea breeze and the fact that we were homeward bound put us in a jolly humor and we took chairs, lit cigars and began to enjoy ourselves. After an hour or two on the day ship was tossing quite lively and everything considered I was prompted to confide in my chum that I was sure I would not get sea sick on the trip. He was looking seaward apparently quite a way off and did not answer me. Within the next half hour he got less talkative, was content to sit quietly and look across the water without expressing our thoughts. I think we eventually let our cigars get cold. I noticed my companion

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

set up and start for the other side of the ship and disappear behind the steering engine room. He soon returned to his chair and I noticed he had quite a pronounced, bleached look on his face also a kind of "don't care" expression. I tried to start a conversation with him but to no avail. By this time I noticed another one of the passengers had disappeared from the deck and I became aware of a desire to do the same thing, where, it did not matter. This feeling grew on me until I arose from my chair and strolled around on the other side alone and looked over the rail at the water whirling around as it was thrown back by the twin screws. I soon realized that the feeling which had been growing on me was a decided case of seasickness. I don't think I could describe seasickness and do it justice, but I thought many times that the kid who gets sick trying to smoke his first cigar, could occupy nothing but an extreme rear seat in comparison to it.

The route of the Panama railroad steamships from Colon to New York city, is via the windward passage between Cuba and Jamaica, in passing the West Indies. The coast of the Isthmus of Panama for a considerable distance east of Colon is in a northeasterly direction, or such that a direct line toward the windward passage from Colon keeps the ships almost parallel with and in sight of the coast for three or four hours. We were not long in sailing out of sight of the city of Colon, although by close observation we could distinguish the three tall poles of the Marconi wireless telegraph station there long after the buildings of the city had vanished below the horizon.

When supper time came there were very few of the passengers who had the slightest inclination of going to the dining room and most of us were laid away in our berths for the night. Everybody had troubles of his own and there was some little satisfaction in knowing that everyone had his share of it. Our first sight of land was in the afternoon of the third day out, when we passed a small island covered with green trees and vegetation which stood high out of the water with perpendicular edges to a height of seventy-five or a hundred feet above the water. The under formation seemed to be solid rock and had become so worn, from the action of long beating of the big waves which splashed continually high up on the sides. This small island was probably one of the West India group but we had no way of knowing the name of it. We learned that evening that we would pass Cape Maisi, which is the extreme eastern point of Cuba, about midnight. Before dark we came in sight of Hayti and could see the island while it was still light enough to see.

We were informed that after passing Cape Maisi that the sea would be quiet, and this we were longing for so that we might be able to get up and begin to eat again. During the next day's progress we passed a great many islands, mostly small ones. The day was warm and none of us had as yet donned any heavier clothing than we had worn in the tropics.

About one o'clock we ran within about a mile of the shore of some island which we were told was one of the Fortunate Islands, but I believe this is not the correct name. Our vessel blew a whistle signal on hearing the city we were about to pass, to the effect that we would stop to exchange mail. We stopped and dropped anchor and waited for the row boat to come up which had started out to meet us as soon as our whistle was sounded. The boat was manned by five or six husky looking negroes and one white man. Mail was exchanged also several turtles for the kitchen were hauled aboard. After a stop of about twenty minutes we again weighed anchor and started for the open seas. The sail during this day was quite smooth compared to the others and when supper time came a view in the dining room showed few vacant places at the table.

The stewards and cooks were no doubt experienced in their line and knew very nearly how many places to prepare according to the weather. The next two days we encountered some very rough seas, although it is always rough off Cape Hatteras.

A wireless telegram reached us to the effect that the storm was the worst one of the season and had caused considerable damage to shipping along the coast and also had washed away a large light house at some point, the name of which I do not remember.

When we were off Washington, D. C. asked the wireless telegraph operator what would be the cost of a 10 word message to Chicago, and he answered $1.60. On the way we passed other Panama railway steamships once or twice and communicated with them by wireless telegraph as well as with the mainland at several places.

The last day we had nice smooth sailing and most everyone got over sea sickness and the bright, warm weather made it a most pleasant ride. Up until the last day we were much surprised as the hours passed, at not finding the weather growing colder. The last day, however, was quite chilly.

Owing to slow time made on account of the storm we were considerably behind the schedule time and were to arrive in Sandy Hook about midnight where we would wait until daylight to proceed up the Hudson to New York city. Before we retired for the night we could see many lights ahead of us and to our left, although they must have been a long way off. There was some merry making that night by those who felt like it, and others sat quietly and contentedly, after the fashion of one who has finished a hard day's work and was satisfied with the results about to be obtained. One thing that we could feel easy on, for the first time in many months, was the fact that we had been isolated from the deadly malaria and yellow fever mosquito, long enough to have had it develop, but we had been inoculated before leaving Colon. We went to sleep late that night, after having decided on what we would buy the next day the first thing after landing, every article of which might be found on a first-class menu card.

Sometime during the night the "Mexico" dropped anchor in the outer harbor at New York. After the three or six days' ride everybody was in such condition as to lure sound, restful sleep as soon as the boat became quiet. We were up early and as soon as it became light we found ourselves within sight of the city, with several other big steamers anchored, as we were waiting for a pilot boat to escort us through the narrow channel into the harbor. About seven o'clock a pilot reached us and we followed it through the narrow channel into the harbor about three miles distant from where we had lain the previous night. This part of the course seemed to be a dangerous place for large boats as ringing buoys were numerous, clanging their warning message to the passing boats from their various stations.

New York harbor is a very pretty place, bounded on one side by bluffs and on the other by Long Island and the city of Brooklyn. On the bluff side is a fortress which is a very pretty and imposing construction of battlements; on the other side in another part, almost opposite. When we got to this place we were obliged to again anchor to await the coming of the United States quarantine cutter which was to inspect our ship for any cases of contagious diseases. This was slow in coming and we lay for an hour or two watching other boats about us, of which there were many, including passenger steamers, freighters, ferries, tugs; United States revenue cutters and other smaller ones. About nine o'clock the quarantine cutter reached us and the medical officers came aboard. We were all assembled in the forward saloon and all those who were there to answer the roll call, were O. K. for release. Others were held according to quarantine restrictions.

A revenue officer also took a verbal inventory of personal baggage and belongings. After passing the quarantine examination, we felt relieved and that we had reached the last gate between us and freedom as it were. At this point of the harbor is quite an abrupt bend in the river and on this bend an overlooking the river coming up, stands the famous Bartholdi light-house situated on Bedlow Island and was about one-half mile from us as we lay in the harbor waiting for the quarantine officers. The "Liberty" figure is made of bronze and the partly foggy and frosty morning air made it appear as if draped in flowing robes of velvet color. Altogether it is a very imposing structure.

After having been released by the medical authorities we moved on up the river to the docks. The Hudson river at this place is a scene of much activity requiring a skillful steersman to avoid hitting other crafts. Two stout little tugs pushed and pulled at our big vessel and finally put us into the slip. Quite a large crowd thronged the wharf and sheds, some to meet friends or relatives on board the ship. We soon got off and into the sheds where we were to have our baggage inspected by the revenue officers. We spent the remainder of the time until three o'clock about the city and left via the Erie railroad for Chicago.

JANE ADAMS TO BE AT MADISON

SPECIAL LECTURE FOR UNIVER-SITY SUMMER SESSION.

NEW PROFESSORS APPOINTED

Edward Alsworth Ross, Distinguished
American Sociologist, Added to Faculty.

Madison, Wis.—Announcement has just been made that Miss Jane Adams, the well known leader in college settlement work, has been appointed special lecturer for the university summer session. The selection of Miss Adams is the result of the policy announced recently of having a number of non-resident lecturers and professors to take part in the summer school work. Miss Adams will give a series of lectures on "The Newer Ideas of Peace," in which she will trace the new humanitarianism in the various movements for social amelioration; in the protective legislation which regards the weakest citizen as a valuable asset; in the protest against the social waste of child labor, as well as in the demand for higher standards of life because of the need of increased industrial efficiency. Miss Adams' knowledge, gained at first hand, of the social problems which she will discuss, makes this course in the summer school of great importance to those interested in sociology and sociological questions.

The department of political economy has also secured Professor Thomas K. Urdahl, professor of political science in Colorado college, to conduct a part of the work in political economy in the summer session. The trust movement in Europe will form the subject of a series of lectures by Professor Urdahl, in which he will consider the origin and development of the principal European syndicates and their significance in international trade, with special reference to their influence on the foreign trade of the United States. In this course he will discuss the methods of the American Standard Oil company in forming affiliated petroleum syndicates and in European countries; the consolidation of banking institutions into powerful groups and their relation to trust promotion and financing; as well as the influence of trusts and syndicates upon the protective tariff of continental Europe.

Dr. Richard T. Ely will have charge of the department of political economy of the summer session this year and will give a course in the history of economic thought and on custom and competition.

New Professors.
The university has received a notable addition to its faculty in Professor Alsworth Ross, who has just been chosen to fill the new professorship of sociology. Professor Ross is generally regarded as one of the most distinguished American sociologists. For the past five years he has been in the faculty of the University of Nebraska, where he has been considered one of the strongest and most popular professors.

Professor Ross, after graduating from college, studied at the University of Berlin, and afterwards at Johns Hopkins University, from which he received the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1891. The following year he became professor of economics of the University of Indiana, and later associate professor at Cornell University. From 1893 to 1900 he was professor of sociology at Leland Stanford, Jr. University. In addition to his academic work, Professor Ross has been advisory editor of the American Journal of Sociology, to which he has been a frequent contributor; secretary of the American Economic Association, and is an associate of the Institute International de Sociologie.

Professor Author.
He is the author of two books on sociology, one of which, "Social Control," has been characterized by Professor Simmel of the University of Berlin as "one of the best pieces of analysis that has ever been produced in the sociological field." His second volume, "Foundations of Sociology," Professor Giddings of Columbia University, Professor Small of the University of Chicago, and other prominent sociologists consider an invaluable contribution to sociological theory.

Professor Taussig of Harvard and Professor Seligman of Columbia University in recent reviews of Professor Ross' work, characterize it as that of a keen, thorough, but cautious scholar of marked independence of thought and judgment, who gives promise of making substantial addition to sociological theories during the next quarter of a century. Professor Ross is now engaged upon his most important work, entitled "Principles of Sociology," in which he is endeavoring to restate these principles and lay a strictly scientific foundation for future work.

New Professor of Physiology.
Dr. Joseph Erlanger, who has been appointed professor of physiology, was graduated from the University of California. He pursued his medical studies at Johns Hopkins University from which he received the degree of doctor of medicine. Upon completing his course at Johns Hopkins he was appointed to a fellowship and afterward became assistant and recently associate professor of physiology at that institution. He is regarded as one of the ablest of men in the department of physiology at Johns Hopkins, both as a teacher and as an investigator.

Professor Erlanger has published a considerable number of papers embodying the results of his researches in physiology, some of them quite extensive, and a number of them are regarded by physiologists as of fundamental importance. The addition of Dr. Erlanger will give added strength to the pre-medical work which has always had an important place at the university, and which has recently been extended by the establishment of the department of anatomy.

In carrying out the plan of extending the work of the agricultural college in investigation of the soils of the state, particularly those that need special treatment in order to become fertile, provision was made by the regents at their last meeting for an assistant especially trained to carry on the chemical work in this connection. Dr. Andrew F. McCleod of Chicago, who has been making a specialty of chemistry of soils for some time past, has been appointed instructor in soils in the college of agriculture.

JANESVILLE BEAT JEFFERSON FIVE

Local High School Basket Ball Team
Won Game Last Night by Score of 36 to 12.

By a score of 36 to 12 the Janesville High school basketball team defeated the five from Jefferson in the local gymnasium last evening. Sent out was the star of the contest, throwing six baskets from the field. Lee was responsible for three. Though outclassed from the outset, the visitors played gamely to the end. There was a good sized audience present and the teams line up as follows:

Second Team Secures Victory at Brodhead

The high school second team was in Brodhead last evening and in a fast contest on a slippery dance-hall floor "doubled it over" the second five of the Brodhead school. The score was 23 to 12 in favor of the Bower City boys. Their opponents were much larger, but "weren't in it" when it came to team work and basket throwing. Instructor D. D. Manross, Doane Wright, who refereed the game, and Floyd Benson, substitute, accompanied the five. The lineup was:

Janesville: S. Richards, Forward; R. Cunningham, Forward; R. Crissier, Center; E. Strang (Capt.), Guard; Klenke, Guard.

NO TRUTH TO DEAL RECENTLY REPORTED

Manager Osburn Denies Story of
Plan to Divide the Sugar
Beet Territory.

Manager Osburn this morning states that the article published to the effect that the Rock County Sugar Company had entered into a deal with the Madison and Menomonee Falls sugar factories to divide the territory for beets between them, was made from whole cloth. In discussing the article, Mr. Osburn said: "I am sorry such statements should get into print as they give the farmers a wrong impression. Captain Davidson came to Janesville on Thursday and left yesterday—Friday—for Mt. Clemens, Michigan. He did not go to Madison or have any conference with any of the Madison factory owners. We shall not divide the territory for acreage between these factories. I have told our farmers to delay signing contracts, to wait and see what we could do for them and as soon as our slicing is over we will take the matter up with them."

Ware, died at her home in this city last yesterday afternoon from injuries received in a fall down the rear stairway of their residence. AN OLD SAYING.

Showing How Cause And Effect Are Never Far Removed.

It is an old saying "where there's honey there's bees."—and less true is one which science has coined more recently, "Where there's Dandruff there's germs"—and to push the inference still further we may truly say "Where there's Dandruff cured Newbro's Herpicide has been at work."

The reason of Herpicide's isolation as a genuine cure for Dandruff lies in the fact that it attacks and destroys the root of the whole trouble—a parasitic germ which feeds upon the material which nourishes the hair follicle.

Other so-called remedies are not directed at this true cause of the disease.

Accept no substitute, there is none. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

— FORTY YEARS AGO —

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, January 20, 1866.—A Cold Snap.—Change in Temperature.—Yesterday was mild and genial, and the snow was in a melting mood, but towards night a storm of sleet and snow set in, which continued into the night, accompanied by a force driving wind, making it very tedious. During the night, the weather cleared off and it became intensely cold, the thermometer marking 15 degrees below zero. There is a difference of forty degrees between the temperature of yesterday and that of today. Greenlanders wouldn't grumble at that.

The Railroads.—The storm last night deranged the railroad trains to a considerable extent. The express train on the C. & N. W. Ry. going north left here last evening more than an hour later, and the train going south was several hours behind time. The train from Madison on the M. & P. du C. Ry. due here at midnight, did not arrive until five o'clock this morning. We believe everything is on time today.

For some reason the Madison mail missed connection last night so that the letter of our correspondent did not come to hand.

Who Wouldn't Go Sleighing?—A party of young people went to Evansville from this city yesterday on a sleigh ride, and were caught out in the terrible weather, and obliged to remain all night. Rumor has it that they were unable to obtain beds, and were therefore compelled to "watch and wait" around the fire all night. Whew!

The Evansville Citizen reports seven cases of small-pox in that city.

Editors Gazette.—Fearful suffering of white and colored refugees, from cold and hunger, in Arkansas, has awakened sympathy on the part of some of our citizens, and an effort has been commenced in furnishing mostly second-hand clothing for women and children; boots and shoes and money for their relief. Three barrels have already been filled and sent on. Materials are still being donated to fill other barrels, and all who desire to help in this good work are requested to send their packages to the stores of F. S. Dillard & Co., and O. J. Dearborn & Co., as early as convenient during the coming week.

Mr. Fulson, agent of the Union Committee, has been here from whom we have learned that many of the sufferers have already perished, which has been substantiated from other reliable sources.

Let all of our citizens who wish to render assistance, act promptly in meeting this emergency.

JOSEPH WRIGHT.

..COMING ATTRACTIONS..

Alan Dale's Comment.—Alan Dale, the caustic New York critic, had this to say in the New York American of May 17th when she opened her memorable metropolitan engagement at the Bijou theatre, last season, early in November:

"May Irwin was indeed due, if only to disentangle our footsteps from the wicked web of dingy 'press stories' that have beset them lately. What melancholy retirement nobody arose to take her place. How could she have imagined that we would forget her? Careless we may be—fickle, perhaps—but grossly ungrateful, never!

"It was pleasant to welcome back Miss Irwin, not only to get rid of the roseate and perpetual 'press agent'—for now that she is launched she can run away and play—but because she past, and does well today. It is a pretext—like a chair that invites you to sit on it. And Miss Irwin sits on and all through this new offering which is by, with, or from G. V. Hobart. She splashes through it, as the circus lady through the paper hoop, and emerges unhurt on the other side—with the smile that fastens at the back quite intact.

"She has to say a number of funny things—and some of them really are funny—to stand in the midst of nearly seventy people, who all feed her with the food that every star craves, and to sing the inevitable coon songs, which of late have shown a marked but not belated tendency to get out of fashion. All this she has to do, and does in her best style.

"There is even some sort of a 'complication' in which Miss Irwin, as a re-married widow, with an adult son, has been forced to knock seven years from the life of her first husband, and to renounce the aforesaid son.

"Miss Irwin was quite her old self (and I mean the honest by that) in her songs. She came to the very edge of the footlights, she beamed expansively upon the dear people who have read so much about her of late (she's leaving all her money to a theatre for the sweet, starved souls), and then she spoke the songs.

"It was never dull when May Irwin was working; it was generally jolly and satisfactory. She has taken up the thread of her 'career' where she broke it off. Nothing has altered except the Bijou theatre—where there are now five escapes leading to Sixth Avenue! With Marie Dressler and May Irwin, both on Broadway at the same time there is really no excuse for that tired feeling. If the methods of these two jocular ladies are different—though their waist measures may be identical—their both toll in the same cause—the worthy endeavor to induce laughter by the force of their own dulcet personalities.

"Mrs. Black is Back! will answer all Miss Irwin's requirements, and keep her smiling in our midst. At least we all hope so. Those smiles that flash at the back and don't add theater come off, are rare. We want them, I consider that we deserve them, too, because we have endured a lot to get them. Moreover, May Irwin has interested us all. She has made posthumous partners of us. If Mrs. Black proves profitable, hasn't she told us all about the marvelous will she has made, by the terms of which we benefit? She won't be there to see the benefit, perhaps we shant, for she seems healthy, but it will be there for the same for our progeny.

"So let us up and applaud the genial Miss Irwin in Mrs. Black's Back! Let us see to it that future generations profit. There are not many actresses of May Irwin's gay, altruistic mind. They do not all leave their millions to art."

Other Attractions.

On the 20th of January, Manager Myers has secured the engagement of "Arizona." This favorite has been seen here before but is always welcome. It is the first of the truly western plays to "catch on" in the past and it has played several seasons to crowded houses throughout the country. On Saturday, February 3d, Wilton Lackaye will be the attraction and he will appear in the "Pit." Mr. Lackaye has long been famous on the American stage, and his appearance here in his famous play will mark an era in local dramatic circles. On the 6th Manager Myers offers the "Bases in Toyland." Taking it all in all, Janesville is to be given the best theatrical production on the road this winter. In his efforts to secure Mrs. Bernhardt's engagement for March the following story printed relative to her American engagement may be interesting.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Richard Mansfield, who arrived here today for a two weeks' engagement, tonight gave out the following correspondence supplemental to the telegram sent by him yesterday to Klaw & Erlanger, theatrical managers, in New York, asking them to open their theaters to Mrs. Bernhardt, and thus avoid the danger of her health incurred by playing nightly in a tent.

New York, Jan. 13.—Richard Mansfield: "We fear that you have been imposed upon. Mrs. Bernhardt's managers have a circuit of theaters of their own, and are not applying to us for any dates. There is neither danger nor necessity of her playing in tents."

Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read the statements of Janesville citizens.

And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it:

Mrs. Charles Porter, of 128 Washington St., Janesville, Wis., says: "My husband had kidney trouble for a number of years and it affected his back and limbs so as to keep him complaining all the time with pain. The backache and pain in the joints were especially severe. He used a number of doctors and backache remedies that did not help him and finally seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in the Janesville papers I went to the People's Drug Company and got a box for him. The result was entirely satisfactory. The pains and backache left him and he had no return of the trouble. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. "The newspaper size" of a store—the relative space of its advertisements, compared with those of its competitors—is more in the public mind than the actual size of its buildings or salesrooms.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The town of East Aurora, New York, made famous by the "Rocrofters," is a hive of busy industry. Some four hundred men find employment and most of them were picked up from the highways and byways, disheartened and discouraged, and put to work in lines to which they were best adapted.

The investment in land and buildings now represents half a million dollars and the output is unique, because every article produced is hand made. The printing shop, connected with this industry, has no parallel, in this or any other country, and every book turned out is a work of art. These books sell at from $2 to $50 each and the subject matter contained in them is as original and unique as the book itself, for it is prepared by Elbert Hubbard, the founder of the "Rocrofters" settlement.

There is only one Elbert Hubbard in the country today and his little magazine known as the "Philistine," and the "Little Journeys" sent out with it, are bringing the author well merited fame as a writer and original thinker.

Mr. Hubbard believes in developing manhood and every man in his employ considers himself a necessary cog in the "Rocrofters" industry. He is a friend of the man who toils and is very popular with his workmen.

In the last number of the "Philistine" Mr. Hubbard devotes a chapter to organized labor, and he covers the ground so thoroughly and so impartially that his deductions are well worth reading. Mr. Hubbard says:

"Labor unions have increased wages, shortened hours, introduced government factory inspectors, have partially done away with child labor, and done other useful, excellent and beautiful things.

"But when labor unions go beyond the pivotal point and attempt to dictate the amount of the output—bidding any man to earn more than so much; decide on the proportion of apprentices to workmen—that is, who shall advance and who not; declare what work shall be done in schools, in prisons and what not; tear out work that has been done by non-union men and require that it shall be done over by union men; insist that you must join a union, or else be deprived of the right to work; then the union has passed the pivotal point, and has ceased to give an equitable return.

When your children do not go to school for fear of the cry of 'scab,' when your wife dare not hang out the washing in the back yard for fear of the cry of 'scab,' when you hesitate to go to your work knowing you may be carried home on a stretcher, when brickbats take the place of reason, and the 'walking delegate' says: 'Carry a union card or take out an accident policy,' then things have gone so far that in self-protection the union must be temporarily laid low with a link-pin. The people of America cannot afford to let any combination of men become an engine for the destruction of liberty, be it labor union, Molly Maguires, Ku Klux, or church. There are a million and a half men in America paying dues in labor unions. There are eight thousand paid 'walking delegates' or 'business agents,' who look to the laborers for support. A million dollars a year is paid to organizers, the money being paid by the laborers. Here we get an institution that supports a large number of men who do not work; who can call a strike or declare it off; who can prey on both employer and employer at will. It is like a religious institution grown great, that lives and thrives on the fears of its constituents.

"Local unions meet weekly or daily. The men are called together in 'chapel' to receive orders. Conference and consultation are out of the question—unions are run by the men who got paid for running them. And the talking men in any union are, almost without exception, men who hope to rise, by loyalty to the union and by helping along their employer. Did you ever hear of a union where the men were called together to discuss methods and means to better the business that supplied them a livelihood. Not exactly!

"Members of a union hope to rise by helping along the union. They want more pay, shorter hours, and give their time to stating grievances that grow by telling. They wish to become 'walking delegates' organizers or officers in the union. Men who are loyal to the firm, who have ambitions about furthering the business; who expect to become superintendents, foremen, partners and officers in the company keep out of unions, because they are not wanted there. John Mitchell was right: 'Once a laborer always a laborer,' if you are a union man and work in a closed shop. The closed shop writes the life sentence of every man in it, and shuts the man off from the friendship of the employer. Labor union organizers constantly fan the fallacy that employers are the enemies of the men to whom they supply work; that capital is at war with labor, and that success lies in secretly combining against capital. The organizers and helpers are really paid attorneys, and their business is to distort the truth for their own interests. They are preachers upholding their denomination. Labor union meetings are all ex parte—only one side is represented. The employer, his superintendents and foremen are carefully excluded.

"With the open shop the labor union is a good thing—it brings men together, and that which cements friendships and makes for brotherhood is well.

"But the closed shop creates a sharp line of demarcation, between labor and capital, and between union and non-union men. It says: 'Once a laborer always a laborer.' It stops the law of evolution; throttles ambition; stifles endeavor; and tends to make tramps of steady and honest workmen. Workmen who own homes cannot afford to join unions, and men who are in unions cannot afford to invest in homes. Because to strike is not a matter of choice; they have to throw up their jobs at the crook of the finger of a man who, perhaps, has no home, no wife, no children, no aged parents. Men over forty who go on a strike do not get back. Strikes are ordered by young men who have no property interests; no family ties and nothing to lose. For old men who cannot earn the scale there is no work. Men with children to feed and clothe had better not forfeit the friendship of their employer by disregarding or opposing his interests.

"When the unions have power to dictate a closed shop, they have reached a point where they say: 'You must join our union or starve.' That is, join our church or you shall not live in this community. Exactly the condition that existed in Spain when Torquemada gave all Jews thirty days in which to join the Catholic church or leave the country. When he saw that many were leaving the country, he fell upon them, and the gutters of Granada ran ankle-deep in human blood. This, in a degree, stopped the emigration, and thousands of people to save their lives, were forced into hypocrisy and mental servitude.

When unionism reaches a point where it dictates to the employer whom he shall hire, and decides who shall have the right to labor and who not, then unionism has become un-American—a menace too great to overlook. Unlimited power is always dangerous when centered in the hands of a few men.

"The American Federation of Labor is controlled by eleven men. These men are not workmen. They may have been once, but now they live on the labor of others. They undertake to manipulate and regulate the lives of those who toil, and take toll for their service. The result is, that being human, they are drunk—power-crazed by success, and are attempting to run an engine fitted for fifty miles an hour at a speed of one hundred. It is the working out of the law of diminishing returns. From being a benefit, the labor union has become a burden. The few men who control the labor unions have created a phantom in their minds called 'capital,' which they think is after them and is going to shut them into the ditch. They have frightened the laborers so long with ghost stories that they have come to believe their lies. What shall be done about this insane clutch for power? Must we forever endure the rule of the demagogue?"

"I'll tell you; both sides are right and both sides are wrong. The capitalists of this country, for the most part, were once workmen, and many are workmen now. And any laborer who owns a home and has a savings-bank account is a capitalist."

"Political and money, and thus general business conditions all over the world are improved. The Russian situation is less menacing. The differences between France and Germany in regard to Morocco are not as threatening as they seemed a few days ago. It is notable that there was no change last week in the rates of discount fixed by the banks of England, France and Germany, and the open market rates were easier. There is a decided improvement in Germany. French bankers have arranged a temporary loan for Russia, which will serve to tide the latter over present financial difficulties until she is in condition to negotiate a permanent loan.

recently seemed to be the only reason for caution.

So far as the business of the country is concerned there is no ground for any difference of opinion, at present or in the near future. The notable feature is not merely the extraordinary activity, but the still more remarkable absence of any signs of overproduction or overpromotion. International conditions are subject to change, however, at any moment. There is no knowing how soon Europe will call upon us for gold, and it will be some time before the money market will be on a really stable basis. Meanwhile there is a practical certainty of railway rate legislation, and at least the possibility of a coal strike, though that does not seem very probable. Vast schemes of competitive railway building to the Pacific are under way.

PRESS COMMENT.

Forgotten? Oshkosh Northwestern: Senator La Follette must miss the frequent mention of his own name in the daily papers these days.

Never To Part. Racine Journal: Arizona and New Mexico both recognize that once united in statehood there is no divorce later on.

Melting Of The Icicle. Chicago Record-Herald: The returns from the Indiana district republican conventions indicate that Fairbanks is pretty warm, after all.

Rude Jab At Cartoonist. Beloit News: Walter Wellman would be forgiven a failure to find the north pole if he would take Ralph Wilder along and lose him.

No Warmth To His Welcome. Chicago News: Chief Collins welcomes the investigation by the grand jury much as a man might welcome a visit from his dear and only mother-in-law.

Between Two "Oshes." Berlin Journal: If you want to locate Berlin, tell your friends that it is the city in whose suburbs Oshkosh is located. And Oshkosh is well-known, not by reason of its wonderful works or people, but its wonderful Oshkosh; two oshes with a "k" between them.

Never Had A Stand In. Wausau Record: Railroad Commissioner Thomas' admission of the fault of his department in the charges of rebate receiving against Mr. Philipp shows there is one man connected with the reform administration who is not afraid to say so when he is wrong. But then he never had much stand-in with the powers.

Fund And The Small Salary. Fond du Lac Reporter: A clerk in an eastern bank whose salary was $50 a month was notified by his employers that he could not marry until his salary was at least $1,000 a year. The clerk resigned and says he will marry anyhow and take his chances on getting another position. He declares he can support a wife on $50 a month and the girl says she is willing to take her chances. If every young man had to wait until he was earning $1,000 a year before he could marry, Cupid would have a dull time of it. Even in these prosperous times $1,000 salaries are not the rule. Many a man is supporting a family on $50 a month or less. These families are comfortable too and not a few of the men who are bringing up families on $50 a month or less have saved enough to buy their own homes. If the $1,000 rule was made in Fond du Lac it would go hard with most of the young people who are planning to start housekeeping. There would certainly be a falling off in the number of weddings.

On Getting Out Of Bed. Medical Talk: Don't jump up the first thing after your eyes are open. Remember that while you sleep the vital organs are at rest. The vitality is lowered and the circulation not so strong. A sudden spring out of bed is a shock to those organs, especially to the heart, as it starts to pumping blood suddenly.

Take your time in getting up. Yawn and stretch; wake up slowly; give the vital organs a chance to resume their work gradually.

Notice how a baby wakes up. It stretches its arms and legs, rubs its eyes and yawns and wakes up slowly. Watch a kitten wake up. First it stretches out one leg, then another, rubs its face, rolls over and stretches the whole body. The birds do not wake up and fly as soon as their eyes are open. They shake out their wings and stretch their legs, waking up slowly. This is the natural way to wake up. Don't jump up suddenly, don't be in such a hurry, but stretch and yawn and yawn and stretch. Stretch the arms and the legs; stretch the whole body. A good yawn and stretch is better even than a cold bath. It will get you thoroughly awake, and then you will enjoy the bath all the more.

The Scuttlers. Chicago Inter Ocean: The attempt of Mr. McCall of Massachusetts to amend the Philippine bill so as to commit the United States to the policy of independence for the Philippines ended on Tuesday in complete failure.

His amendment has been framed with great care to meet the wishes of the Boston anti-imperialists. The Boston and other newspapers supporting the policy of scuttle had been doing their utmost to exploit Mr. McCall as the representative of real republican sentiment. It was intimated that when it came to the test he would carry enough republicans with him to secure the adoption of his amendment.

Mr. McCall, taking advantage of the differences between regular and insurgent republicans, made his attempt to reverse republican policy in the Philippines.

tion, but it was intended as a test question. It was to determine whether the republicans in congress, with division in their own ranks, would stand by the McKinley policy or the Bryan policy.

When Mr. McCall's amendment was declared out of order and appeal was taken from the ruling of the chair, 158 republicans voted to sustain the ruling, and only three republicans voted with the 120 democrats to sustain Mr. McCall's contention.

This was, in effect, a direct vote on the policy of scuttle. The republicans stood pat on the McKinley policy in the Philippines, and in doing so rebuked members like Mr. Longworth, disposed to treat grave questions flippantly, and republicans like Mr. McCall, disposed to reverse the policy of McKinley and adopt that of Mr. Bryan.

The vote has special significance in view of the fact that Mr. Bryan is just now studying conditions in the Philippines and incidentally collecting ammunition for another presidential campaign in 1908.

TRYING SUBSTITUTE FOR COSTLY RUBBER

Parker Pen Co. is Experimenting with New Substance, "Galalith," Made from Cow's Milk.

Experiments now being conducted by the Parker Pen Co. may result in the complete displacement of rubber in the manufacture of fountain-pen barrels. Within the last few years the price of the commodity has risen fifty per cent and the problem has become a serious one for the pen companies because regardless of the increased cost of raw material, the quotations on their finished products both to dealers and the individual buyer must remain unchanged. For a long time, therefore, the local manufacturing firm has been watching the whole world for any new development which might offer a solution to the perplexing problem. Not long ago in the United States consular reports from Germany stated that an account of a new product perfected through a secret process by a scientist in the city of Stuttgart with the basic element of cow's milk as one of the constituent parts, which had already been used for knife handles, cigar and pen holders, paper-cutters and other novelties, with satisfactory results, and promised to become a useful substitute for celluloid, vulcanized rubber, and the like, owing to numerous advantages it possessed—not the least of which was that its cost was just one-fourth of that of the last named substance.

Mr. George S. Parker immediately entered into a correspondence with the company's representative in that part of the world and as a result several large tablets of this so-called "galalith" reached the factory this week. The natural color of the substance is white, but with the aid of pigments all sorts of beautiful variations ranging from a coral pink to blue and imitation tortoise shell, unattainable with rubber, are possible. In addition to these advantages, it takes a beautiful polish, and pen barrels which have already been manufactured out of some of the tablets are extremely pleasing to the eye. The material is, no more brittle than the rubber, yet quite as hard and fine grained. The only question that now remains is: Will it resist the corrosion of the acids in the ink? If it satisfactorily demonstrated, within the next few weeks, that it will do so, the fountain pen business is in a fair way to be completely revolutionized.

GOOD COUNSEL.

The old proverb says: "In a multitude of counselors there is wisdom."

Just so.

Surely the multitude of Janesville people, who testify to the ability of Dr. Richards to do painless dentistry, ought to be convincing that he is doing what he is talking about.

And when they one and all counsel you to try him for your dental work, it OUGHT TO BEAR WEIGHT with you.

Don't it look reasonable that what he does for them, he can do for you?

And if there is anything in the world that would please you, it is the thought of getting absolute immunity from pain in dental work.

But to prove it to your personal satisfaction Dr. Richards must be given the chance to do your dentistry.

Drop in and talk it over with him. He will tell you exactly what the bill will amount to, so you can plan your resources and know where you will come out.

LIVERMORE'S ADDRESS TO THE COUNTY BOARD

Chairman of the County Fathers
Thanks Them for Their Assistance.

At the closing of the January meeting of the County Board on Friday afternoon Chairman Livermore's remarks to the members of the board, which will be of interest to other than the board itself and are published below:

"Gentlemen of the Rock County Board: For this cordial testimonial of appreciation on your part, of my services, as chairman, I desire to say I fully reciprocate and count it one of the pleasant features of my life that I have been permitted by your grace, to occupy the chair and preside over this splendid body of men for the past two years, and now as I lay down this gavel for the last time and return to you the trust you have reposed in me, will you permit me to say a few words concerning the board work. By the grace of my constituents I have been permitted to sit in this body for eight years, nearly a decade. In that time much has been done for the public good and much money has been expended in behalf of the county. We have built a county jail; have made general improvements at the county farm; including a complete fire protection that has at least once vindicated the large investment and saved our asylum building; we have built a handsome soldier monument that will be here when you and I have long been in our final rest; we have spent considerable sums in and around the courthouse, including a new vault addition, and all these expenditures have invariably and in all cases been completed inside of the appropriations therefor, and never until this winter has there been even a breath of scandal or intimation that the investments were not wisely and economically made and it has remained for an outsider to make the charges which have not been sustained in fact. I believe there is no member of this board who really believes there was any foundation for the charges real or implied, and yet I cannot refrain from saying that I believe the building committee made an unintentional mistake when they advised a firm that they were not taking bids on the vault fixtures. In my humble opinion the committees who are spending the county's money should always invite the utmost latitude of competition for the county contracts. In so doing you may be entertaining angels unaware, as the case appears this winter; you may be entertaining the gentlemen with the cloven foot. If the latter occurs he is liable to turn and rend you, but in any event the middle of the road is the safest place for the spender of the public money and publicity is the only safeguard of a county official.

"Permit me to call your special attention to the reports of the auditing committee, who examine the acts of the county officers; they say the county treasurer and county clerk checked up to a cent, a remarkable fact and worth remembering. I want to call your attention to the excellent financial condition of the treasury. Never since I have been on the board have we gone through a year without borrowing money to tide over to tax time. Now with every outstanding voucher accounted for we have $17,045.52 in the treasury, and the treasurer reported that he had collected more interest from the banks for the past year than his salary came to, a remarkable record.

"A word in retrospect and I am through. There are many faces here today who will be here at the next meeting of this board, but history shows that twenty per cent of us will not return; it may be you or it may be me, but some of us will surely not come back. Today there is only twenty per cent of the original members on the board; now who were here when I came on the board? Two of them—Mr. Rathbun of Janesville and Simon Smith of Beloit have served nearly or quite twenty years, and are growing gray in the service and are today two of the most honored and respected members of the board. Some of our members have joined the board in the great hereafter, of whom I call to mind T. B. Bailey of Beloit, who was with us fourteen years; Almeron Eager of Evansville, for many years known as the 'watch dog' of the treasury; Charles E. Bowles of Janesville, ever a vigilant member, and S. T. Merrill of Beloit, who was connected with the board most of the time for eighteen years and always one of the safest men.

"Gentlemen, I thank you again for your courtesies and patience."

Society..

One of the most notable weddings which has occurred in the county for many weeks took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Snyder in Magnolia on Wednesday, Jan. 17. Miss Iva N. Snyder, a daughter, was the charming bride and Wilbur A. Grover, of Magnolia, the happy groom. Guests numbering over one hundred and fifty assembled at the home in the afternoon. Among them were: Isaac Snyder of Redsburg, Mrs. Emma Tolstson of Milwaukee, Jean Cotton and family from Dakota, and the following from Janesville: J. G. Snyder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Rehberg, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder, Charles Hemmingsway, and Frank Snyder and family. The home was elaborately decorated with evergreens, arbutus, carnations, and roses and in one of the rooms was displayed an array of beautiful gifts. Leaver's orchestra of Beloit played the wedding march at half-past six o'clock and the bride, attended by Miss Elta Townsend, and the groom and his best man, Harold Snyder, met under a beautiful floral bell of white in the parlor, where Rev. Ivey of Footville performed the ceremony. Afterwards an elaborate repast was served under the direction of Mrs. Bowerman of Janesville. The bride is a graduate of the Janesville High school and has been a teacher for over four years. The groom is a son of Wallace Andrew, chairman of the town board of Magnolia. The young people will make their home at the Andrew homestead.

Miss Maude Clapp, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Clapp, 118 Chatham street, was united in marriage Wednesday of this week to Mr. John Wiese of Fitchburg, Dane county, Wis. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Sadie Clapp, a student in the local high school, and the groom was attended by his brother, Edward Wiese of Fitchburg. A few relatives and friends of the happy couple were present. A wedding dinner, at which twenty-six were served, was spread at noon at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Wiese left on the evening of the same day for Madison, where they will reside. Mr. Wiese being an employee of the Madison street railway company. Miss Clapp resided in Janesville about a year and her many friends will extend congratulations.

After the awards, tempting refreshments were served and Roy Carter and Mr. Bishop played for an informal dance. Another party will be given under the same auspices in the near future.

The prizes for costumes were awarded to Mrs. Viebranz, Martha Moos, Frances Schilling, Mrs. Brummond, and Miss Mary Brummond. TEXT OF THE FAMED "S. S. J." RESOLUTION

Drawn Up by Supervisor Gillies and Others and Sprung at Final Session of County Board.

At the request of the legal talent of the county board one of the supervisors, put ourselves on the backs for the able and technical fight we have put up at this session.

"RESOLVED: That we, the members of the Rock county board of supervisors, pat ourselves on the backs for the able and technical fight we have put up at this session.

"We congratulate our constituents for their foresight in selecting such a splendid array of talent—never the like was seen before.

"Every committee has fought its report to a finish. Every supervisor has been whitewashed in the most artistic manner, with only here and there a faint streak.

"All salaries have been grabbed with old-time eagerness, with visions of future increase.

"Mention cannot be made of all the committees in this body but special mention of the ability to flop of the equalization committee which was able to and did flop once a day for a week, should not be overlooked.

"All other committees had equal ability but it is unnecessary to enlarge upon all the acts and mistakes of this board and the county, as they are all recorded in the 'RED BOOK,' as well as paid for at advertising rates in the county papers of this Great County."

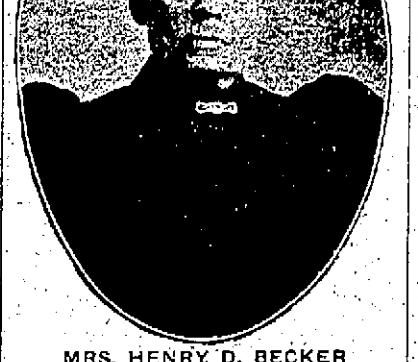

"We move the adoption of this resolution and ask that it be referred to Building Committee No. 7 for repairs, repainting, and general reconstruction."

The resolution was not adopted and of course the framers had no expectation that it would be. It was sprung as a joke but reading between the lines one may easily gather that there is some serious sentiment behind the mask of fun and horse-play.

Fifty Years Married

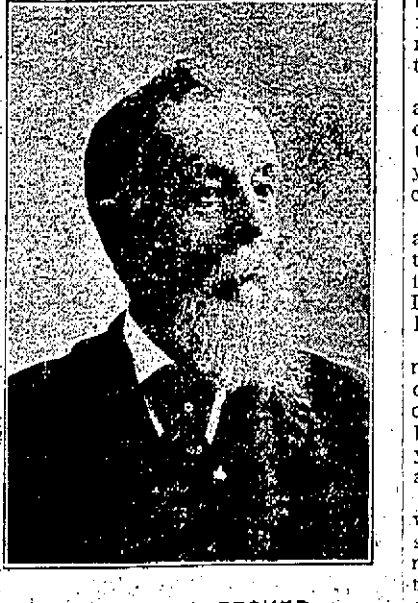

Guests from Iowa, Minnesota, and Illinois are expected to join with the many Rock county friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Becker in the celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary which will take place at the hall in Footville Wednesday afternoon, January 31. Invitations will be issued within a day or two. The festivities are to begin at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Johnson, was born in Brownville, Jefferson county, July 3, 1831. Mr. Becker was born on June 27, 1834, in Oneida county, New York state. He came to Wisconsin and settled in Rock county when a lad of but twelve years and has lived here continuously ever since with the exception of

Mr. and Mrs. Becker are both in good health and spirits and with their many friends are looking forward to the anniversary celebration with very pleasant anticipations. They have one son, Myron E. Becker, who lives in the village of Footville.

CORROBORATES STORY PRINTED RECENTLY

Philadelphia Church Standard Writes of Uniting Two Episcopal Parishes.

Two weeks ago the Gazette printed a story to the effect that there was a possibility that the two Episcopal parishes, Christ and Trinity, might unite and sell their present church property and erect a large new edifice in a central portion of the city. In corroboration of this announcement the following clipping from the Church Standard of Philadelphia for January 20th will be of interest to the members of the two parishes, showing how the church at large considers the matter:

"It is probable that Trinity and Christ church parishes, Janesville, Wis., will unite. The original parish was divided in 1859. The combined communicant list is 450. It is planned to sell both present churches and build a handsome church in a central location.

It would surely seem to be the best interests of the church for the proper steps to be taken, so that this happy arrangement may be consummated at the earliest possible date.

OPEN NEW BIDS FOR PHILIPPINE ROADS

Parties Who Furnished Proposals Before, Figured Again—No New Bidders.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—The new bids for concessionary contracts or grants for the construction of railroads in the Philippine islands, which had been submitted to Secretary Taft, after the bids submitted in answer to the previous call for proposals, had been rejected, were opened this morning at ten o'clock and submitted to the Bureau of Insular Affairs for computation. The former bids had been rejected because of departures from the terms of the circular calling for proposals. Secretary Taft, after a number of conferences with Governor Wright and Mr. Forbes of the Philippine commission and Colonel Edwards, chief of the insular bureau, rejected all proposals and readvertised for bids. The terms of the proposals were somewhat modified.

It was decided that, where bidders propose to construct the road without guarantee they will be limited to their bids only by the terms of the Philippine government railroad acts of 1902 and 1903. But, where bidders wish to take advantage of a guarantee of certain interest on their investment they can vary from the original invitations to bid only in point of time or in the cost of construction per mile, as affected by contractors' profits. As to the latter the Philippine government reserves the right to fix the maximum cost of the road. The time in which the road can be completed and the contractors' profits will be important considerations in making the awards. It is understood that the bidders who have sent in proposals this time are practically the same as those who sent in bids on the previous occasion.

Two bids were received and opened this morning. The New Yorkers, associated with the international banking corporation, offered to build the lines in Panay, Negros and Cebu, with the government's guarantee of four per cent interest on 95 per cent of the total cost for thirty years, a hundred miles to be constructed each year until it is completed. J. G. White & Co., to be the constructors for Speyer & Co. of New York, offered to build 390 miles in Luzon and take over the existing Manila Dagupan road without government guarantee of interest, and to also build the Dagupan Loag line, 168 miles long, with a government guarantee of four per cent on 95 per cent of the total cost for thirty years.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW SHOWS CUT IN STOCKS

Seasonable Weather Proves Boon to Retailers, Whose Empty Shelves Encourage Jobbers.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Dun's weekly review of Chicago trade says:

"The commercial position maintains exceptional strength. More seasonable weather brought a good demand for winter apparel and household needs and retail trade generally experienced a sharp reduction of stocks which hitherto moved slowly owing to comparatively mild temperature. Construction work is impeded but slightly, nor has there been interruption to unprecedented consumption of all kinds of building material. Manufacturing moves forward very steadily, with the outlook of the year most encouraging.

"Factory operations disclose more activity in implements, heavy hardware and electric output, and there is a fair request for heavy machinery, automobiles and vehicles. In the leather working lines most activity appears in shoe and belting factories, but orders increase for saddlery, trunks and specialties.

"Distributive branches of general merchandise report satisfactory conditions. Mail orders for spring delivery come forward in good volume for the principal staples. Interior merchants are buying confidently, many requiring early shipments, and house sales are stimulated by increasing numbers of visiting buyers. Movements of commodities, as reflected by railroad returns, show no diminution.

"Failures reported in Chicago district number twenty-five, against twenty-two last week and thirty-one a year ago."

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Peter Brady, Joseph Hase and Lawrence Roscoe, who were convicted of robbery, were sentenced to imprisonment for life by Judge Barnes. As the defendants are minors, they will be sent to Pontiac. Eight robberies in one night were charged against the trio, who found all the victims in the vicinity of Milwaukee avenue and Augusta street, but the largest amount of money secured by them was $1. The youths said they owed their downfall to the evil influences of cheap dance halls on the northwest side.

Defined.
Credit is money, and what is money? While on a street car I heard a man tell another man this about a young fellow who had some money: "He has money, but he does not know what money is—money is a lever."—Orville Sisson.

Where the Trouble Was.
A motorist recently meeting a pony cart in which were a very ancient couple considerably stopped and asked the old gentleman who held the reins of he could be of any assistance in inducing the steed to pass the car. "Thank you," said he, "if you will kindly lead my wife past the car I think the mare and I will manage all right."

GLUTTONY AMONG INDIANS

Enormous Quantities of Provisions Consumed by Remnants of Sioux Tribe.

To remedy the gluttony of the Indians and prevent them eating themselves to death, the Indian bureau is trying to make good housekeepers of the Indian girls. Ten times as much wheat flour is used by the Sioux today as 15 years ago. It is said by the agents that, where cereals and wheat flour are used by the Indians, there is some hope of civilizing them and curing them of gluttony.

At the schools, among the first things in their course, the girls are taught to make bread. But these lessons have not reached the wigwams on the reservations to any marked degree. The Indian cares little for wheat bread anyway. Cereals don't interest him. The reservations west of here are places at least where patent breakfast foods are not fashionable.

Ten months in the year the Sioux Indian prefers meat, and the average meal consists of coffee, meat, beans, dried fruits and corn sirup. The last dish is a great favorite with the Indians.

At some time in the past the New Englanders traded beans for furs or wampum, and since that day the navy bean has been a favorite dish with the red man. They prefer it in soup, and as beans are sometimes dear and hard to secure, 25 or 30 miles from the railroad, the soup of the wigwam many times consists of "one bean and two soups."

The potato has never had a high standing with the Indian. A dish similar to chop suey may be found in almost any Indian home, and a fair grade of Mexican chili can be secured, but the delicately baked potato, so easily prepared in the ashes of a camp fire, is as little known to the Sioux Indian as Saratoga chips are to the natives of Swat.

LIKE A NEW NATION.

The Emergence of Russian Medievalism Into the Freedom of Modern Activity.

There has been no such situation in all history as that we are watching in Russia to-day, the self-effacement of an autocracy that never before entertained a doubt of its mission or its power, and the sudden emergence into active national life of a people that have had no organized political existence in the sense in which we understand such terms. It is not, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, that Russia is without well recognized and long established institutions; but the whole theory of government has rested absolutely on the will of the czar, never upon the rights of the people.

The sudden emergence of Japan out of isolation and obscurity has compelled the attention of the whole world. Of vastly more importance is this emergence of Russia out of a

POWER OF LIFE AND DEATH

Trick with a Possum-Playing Adder That Was Too Much for the Natives.

There is a pug-nosed belligerent little reptile known as the hog-nosed adder that has a trick of playing possum when attacked. If it once gets started on the role the snake can be tied into knots and handled indiscriminately for an hour or more.

While snake hunting in the south a year or two ago, relates the New York Sun, Mr. Dimars plotted to win the admiration of his guide and the population by announcing that he had marvelous powers. He was endowed with the gift of destroying life by a sign.

The natives had never heard of this possum stunt of their dreader adder, and when the performer formed them in a circle around a specimen found in the fields they quaked in their boots, such as had boots.

The magician advanced rapidly as if to attack the incensed snake, pointed his finger to the sky, muttered to himself, and the adder obediently turned on its back. It was tidily passed from hand to hand.

The performer beamed with satisfaction. He would go one better. If the audience would form a larger circle he would restore life to the dead reptile.

The audience obeyed. The snake found all surroundings peaceable after a few minutes, and turned over, to slide away to parts unknown.

Mr. Dimars faced around to accept the admiration of his guides, but the landscape was all still life. To the last ragged urchin his assistant snakes were gone, never to exhibit their faces in camp again.

Medicinal Value of Perfumes.
Most of the perfumes were thought by the ancients to have a medicinal value. Thyme was thought to have a tonic quality and lavender a soothing one. Patchouli was cheering, jasmine stimulating, while heliotrope was irritating, unless used in small quantities.

Some people today believe that sandal is a tonic, and its virtue was known to the Greeks, who anointed themselves with it when they entered the Olympian games.

Electricity in the Household

Electric lights are sanitary, as they do not consume the oxygen of the air, and are thereby specially adapted for the sleeping room and conservatory.

When properly installed, they are absolutely safe in regard to danger of fire. There can be no leaks, no asphyxiation, no explosions, or danger to children; no scratching of matches.

Electric lights are convenient and clean, require no care, are always ready to burn instantly without needing a new mantle, trimming or the like; and what has made them an absolute necessity, in a great many places, is that they can be lighted or extinguished from distant points while lamps are placed in locations where they are perfectly inaccessible.

We are making special rates to all new customers who are connected during this month. They will interest you.
